Addressing physical and behavioral conditions separately has negative consequences on individuals’ health and inefficiently allocates health spending. SAMHSA’s goal is to advance public health efforts to improve the behavioral health of the nation. To achieve that goal, SAMHSA prioritizes integration and coordination of behavioral, physical health, and social/safety net services within its programs. It works with federal partners to ensure behavioral health is included in health promotion, health care delivery, and financing.

SUD CHALLENGES AND SOLUTIONS ........................................ Bay Laurel Central, South
Moderator: Tom Renfree, Deputy Director, Substance Use Disorder Services County Behavioral Health Directors Association of California

Warren Daniels, MA, LAADC, CCJP, Chief Executive Officer, Community Recovery Resources
Community Recovery Resources (CoRR), a not-for-profit public benefit corporation in Northern California, opened the doors of The Campus in 2012. Leveraging cross sector partnerships, the Campus provides an integrated, wellness-focused continuum of care to prevent and treat substance abuse and related behavioral health issues. As the Campus concept developed, awareness increased about similar challenges faced by communities across the country. Community-based organizations focusing on SUD are highly challenged by funding that typically dictates how treatment can be provided, demands high results, and is seldom committed to improvement. Although many CBO’s know integration would increase consumer care and improve outcomes, barriers include funding restrictions and regulation. CoRR’s vision is that our local solution for today will be a national model for tomorrow and that as we implement the Campus model at our sites in Grass Valley, Auburn, and Roseville, other communities will learn about our concept and begin implementing their own Campus's.

Wayne Sugita, Deputy Director, LA County Public Health, SUD Prevention
The presentation describes challenges facing county governments and publicly-funded substance use disorder (SUD) in administering and providing substance use disorder prevention, treatment and recovery services in the context of coordinated and integrated physical health, mental health and SUD services under the provisions of the federal Affordable Care Act and California health care reform and possible solutions to address these challenges. An illustration of a coordinated, integrated health care approach is the Los Angeles County Health Neighborhood Initiative, a county strategic goal effort that establishes regional service delivery networks and engages community residents and community groups to address local health disparities.

The California Association of Health Plans’ mission is to serve our members by creating and sustaining an environment that permits them to maintain viability and grow as organizations dedicated to coordinating or providing high quality, affordable, accessible health care to their members.

The California Council of Community Mental Health Agencies (CCCMHA) promotes comprehensive, responsive, and integrated service systems by enhancing the ability of nonprofit member agencies to provide mental health services that empower the people we serve to lead full and productive lives.

The California Mental Health Services Authority (CalMHSA) is an organization of county governments working to improve mental health outcomes for individuals, families and communities. Prevention and Early Intervention Programs implemented by CalMHSA are funded by counties through the voter-approved Mental Health Services Act (Prop 63).

The California Association of Alcohol and Drug Program Executives, Inc. (CAADPE) is a statewide association of community-based nonprofit substance use treatment agencies. Its members provide substance use disorder (SUD) treatment services at over 300 sites throughout the state and constitute the infrastructure of the state’s publicly funded substance use disorder treatment network. It is the only statewide association representing all modalities of substance use disorder treatment services.

The County Behavioral Directors Association of California represents the county public behavioral health authorities in California. The purpose of the Association is to assure the accessibility of quality, cost-effective, culturally competent behavioral health care for the people of the State of California by providing the leadership, advocacy, and support to public behavioral health programs.

The vision of California Institute for Behavioral Health Solutions (CIBHS) is that California will be the national leader in the provision of mental health and substance use disorder services and support systems that successfully advance hope, wellness, resiliency, recovery and full community integration for all adults, children and families across their life spans.
